Executive Summary

Beginning in August 2016, a community-based planning committee met and helped develop a five-year strategic plan for the Farmville Public Library. Through a combination of library trends, input from library staff, and guidance from a community planning committee, the following strategic plan was created to guide the Farmville Public Library in providing exceptional library service to the citizens of Farmville and Pitt County through 2022 with an eye towards the future.

Statement on Challenges During FY 2020 (Year 3)

Farmville Public Library experienced two major challenges during FY 2020 (Year 3) of this strategic plan that significantly impacted library operations and available services. As such, many of the objectives in this strategic plan were not attainable due to extended facility closures, and the public’s health and safety.

Construction of a new library facility began in October 2019 as expected, though this required a relocation to two smaller temporary facilities with less room for computers, collections and programs, as well as an unexpected delay in receiving a Certificate of Occupancy to open the temporary facility to the public.

The greatest challenge faced has been, and continues to be, the COVID-19 pandemic, which has and continues to affect not only the Farmville community, but the world and how humanity interacts. Following guidelines set by the Town of Farmville, State of North Carolina, and health experts, Farmville Public Library closed its facility to the public on March 17, 2020 to help mitigate the spread of the virus to citizens and staff. During its facility closure, the library established creative ways to offer some library services through the curbside service model while adhering to health and safety recommendations. The library facility re-opened to the public on June 8, 2020 with a plan to re-introduce the full extent of library services over a period of time. Health and safety precautions will continue to be at the forefront of the Library’s plan for offering its services for the immediate and long-term future.

Looking ahead to Year 4 of this strategic plan and beyond, the Library will be looking forward to moving into its new, expanded facility in 2021. More importantly, the Library is optimistic about and is looking forward to resuming all of its services, programs and opportunities to the extent that is safe for the community.

Introduction

Motivation for Planning

In June 2016, the Farmville Public Library received a federally-funded LSTA (Library Services and Technology Act) grant to develop a strategic plan for its library by implementing the planning process outlined in the Public Library Association’s publication, Strategic Planning for Results, and augmented by the Community Needs Assessment Process employed in a recent pilot project sponsored by the State Library of North Carolina.

The library was motivated by the fact that its “only strategic plan … was created in 1992,” and with the roles of public libraries constantly evolving, its plan was “no longer relevant … and is in need of direction to ensure they are serving the community to the best of their ability.”

The Planning Process

The Farmville Public Library chose to use the planning process outlined in the book, Strategic Planning for Results, and augmented by the Community Needs Assessment Process employed in a recent pilot project sponsored by the State Library of North Carolina.

This planning process was developed by the Public Library Association of the American Library Association to encourage public libraries to define their services in light of the needs of the individual communities being served. Strategic Planning for Results was specifically written for small- and medium-sized public libraries and emphasizes a streamlined, community-based approach to planning. The planning process outlined in Strategic Planning for Results is based on the assumption that excellence must be defined locally and that excellence results when library services match user needs, interests, and priorities. Consequently, the planning process asked community stakeholders to identify the needs of the community served by the library and the ways in which the library can best meet those needs. The process also included a survey of the citizens served by the Farmville Public Library, to which a total of 172 individuals responded.

Participants

The key community stakeholders for the Farmville Public Library’s planning process formed the library’s community planning committee. This committee included:

Mary Morrison Dixon
Alana Fisher
Betsy Flanagan
Deb Higgins
Alma Hobbs
Charles Long
John Moore
Sara Singleton
Connie Widney
A staff planning committee, made up of members of the staff of the Farmville Public Library, was also involved in the planning process. The staff planning committee included:

- David Miller, Library Director
- Connie Widney, Children’s Librarian
- Johnnie Zolman, Adult Services Library Assistant
- Judy Andrews, Library Technician

The Farmville Public Library’s planning process was facilitated by Dr. Robert Burgin, a library consultant with over 40 years of experience in library education, library consulting, and library administration.

Community Needs Assessment

The consultant provided the library’s community steering committee with a community needs assessment, based on demographic data for the library’s service area; surveys of the area’s citizens and the library staff; library usage, funding, and technology data; and interviews with members of the local community.

The demographic data reflect the fact that both Farmville and Pitt County have lower median household incomes, lower median home values, and higher poverty rates than does North Carolina as a whole, that a higher percentage of the populations of both Farmville and Pitt County is African American, that Pitt County (but not Farmville) has a more highly educated population than the state as a whole, and that a much higher percentage of Farmville’s residents are 65 and over than is the case for Pitt County and the state of North Carolina. Demographic trends for the past ten years show that, compared with the rest of the state, Farmville and Pitt County have experienced mixed changes in economic well-being, slower growth in minority populations, mixed changes in levels of education, changes in age distributions, and slower population growth for Farmville.

A survey of Farmville citizens found that respondents most frequently used the library for adult books, books for children, and free Wi-Fi. A very high percentage of respondents rated the library as excellent in meeting their needs. When asked how the library’s services, resources, and facility could be improved, several respondents made recommendations related to the library facility, books, and hours. Respondents rated books for adults, books for children, and programs for children as the most important library resources and services. Fewer than one third of the respondents felt that some factor limited their use of the library, and the most frequently identified limit to library use was inconvenient library hours.

A survey of library staff found that a large number of staff regarded the library’s ability to meet the needs of its customers as very good. Staff identified the library’s strengths as the computers, the children’s programs, and the adult programs. Staff saw lack of space, lack of advertising for programs, and lack of staff as weaknesses. Staff listed the top priorities for the library in the future as space needs, computers, and marketing. Staff saw the most important library services as books for adults, free Wi-Fi, Internet access computers, outreach services to preschool children, and videos and DVDs.

Data regarding library usage and funding show that the Farmville Public Library is providing a very high level of library service and is one of the best public libraries in the state, ranking among the top 25 percent... of the public libraries in the state in all but one of the measures examined. Over the past ten years, usage and funding for the Farmville Public Library have grown faster than they have for the average public library in the state in four of the twelve areas under study. A recent statewide assessment of the degree to which the library has been successful in providing public access to computer technology found that the Farmville Public Library exceeds the state average on two of the three major areas and on six of the eleven benchmarks that make up those three areas.

Interviews with members of the local community found strong support for and made recommendations related to adult programs, books and collections, children’s services, the facility, the hours, partnerships and outreach, the staff, and technology.

The library’s community steering committee used the community needs assessment to recommend five service priorities or areas of focus for the library’s strategic plan. The identified service priorities for the Farmville Public Library were:

1. Connect to the Online World
2. Visit an Inviting Place
3. Establish Partnerships
4. Create Young Readers
5. Encourage Lifelong Learning and Reading

The library staff planning team then drafted goals and objectives for each of the service priorities, and these were reviewed and approved by the community steering committee.
